

VETERINARY CARE KULAPPARACHAL

As per the request of chief veterinary surgeon of Veterinary Dispensary Kulapparachal, we have decided to create and launch a new website which is becoming very essential of every organisation in the present world. Currently, the hospital do not have a website and they store the scholarly information on papers. Alongside they wanted us to create a system to manage all the activities happening there, such as managing details of medicine, doctors, staffs, artificial insemination collection records etc because these information and stored on valid registers which is prone to failure at any point of time. The existing system thus is quite cumbersome.

The proposed system will automate all the activities in the hospital which is done by the admin panel alongside the created website which provides a generalized view of hospital to the users.
